Michigan Opinions Survey

* Here is some more information about the proposed research facility:

The University of Michigan is partnering with Los Alamos National Laboratory to build a research computing center in Ypsilanti Township. The facility will support world-changing innovation and create new jobs and opportunities across the state.

Knowing this, do you strongly support, somewhat support, neither support nor oppose, somewhat oppose, or strongly oppose the University of Michigan building a new research facility in Ypsilanti Township?

- Strongly oppose

* Though Los Alamos is known for its research in nuclear energy, its actual scientific research mission includes many other areas, and it has partnered for decades with the University of Michigan on medical research and clean energy. This new facility will house no military or nuclear material, and its national security research will focus on cyber security and improving practices to safely manage America's existing nuclear material.

* This is not a commercial data center run by big tech companies or AI developers. It is an advanced computation facility run by the University of Michigan and Los Alamos National Laboratory to support research in areas benefiting the public. It will be fully nonprofit, exclusively designed for scientific research and academic pursuits, and have no investment from big tech companies, venture capital, or private business.
